

Table of Contents

Introduction	7
I. How Shall We Describe Psychological Phenomena?	15
II. How Shall We Predict What a Person Is Going to Do?	37
III. How Should We Explain What a Person Is Doing?	59
IV. What Controls What a Person Is Doing?	75
V. Cognitive Psychology: A Make-believe Science	89
VI. Debate with a Cognitive Scientist	103
VII. A Road Ahead? Conceptual Analysis and Case Studies	123
VIII. Studying Ourselves in Case Studies as Rule-following Beings	137
IX. What We Can and Must Take for Granted	151
X. There Are No Psychological Laws	179
XI. Transition to a New Psychology	197
XII. A Visit to the Theoretical Basement: From Asking, “What Causes What?” to Asking, “What Follows from What?”	227
References	249