

Table of Contents

An Introduction to Vance Peavy’s Work Marie L. Hoskins	ix
Willow: (Auto)Biographical Reflections on Life and Theory Denise J. Larsen	xvii
Chapter 1: Introduction	1
The SocioDynamic Perspective: A Way of Thinking	2
SocioDynamic Counselling: An Ethical Practice	3
SocioDynamic Counselling: A Form of “Language Game”	4
A New Vocabulary for Counselling	5
An Ironic Frame of Mind for Counsellors	6
Where Is the Problem?	7
Thinking in the Constructive Present	8
The Test of Experience	9
How the Rest of this Book Is Organized	10
Chapter 2: The SocioDynamic Philosophy of Helping	13
Limitations of Industrial-Age Models of Counselling	13
The Importance of Philosophical Ideas in Counselling	15
Ideas for Guiding the Process of Counselling	17
Counselling and Social Capital Are Interdependent	18
The Counsellor Should Present a Human Face	19
To Help Others Is an Ethical Good	21
Counselling Should Promote Personal Freedom	23
SocioDynamic Counselling Is a Wisdom-Based Practice	26
Joint Action, Not Singular Action	39
Showing Respect Is a Social Good	40
Perspectives Guide Actions	40
Self-Creation (Homo Creator)—An Empowering Image to Guide and Inspire the Practice of Counselling	41

Readiness—Not Resistance—A Preferred Concept for Understanding Why Help-Seekers Do or Do Not Participate Willingly in Counselling Dialogue	41
The Counselling Process Provides an Enhanced Learning Environment	42
Position of “Both Knowing”	42
Advice Giving Can Go Wrong	43
A SocioDynamic Credo for Counselling	43
Chapter 3: SocioDynamic Counselling Practice	47
Moves in the Game of Counselling	47
An Essential Caveat	48
Tools for Getting Things Done in Counselling	49
Moves and Tools Combine to Make Strategies	50
A General SocioDynamic Counselling Strategy	51
Dialogical Listening	53
Mindful Problem Solving	75
Intelligent Conversation	80
Visualization and Life-Space Mapping	83
Co-Constructing Personal Projects	85
Guided Participation	87
Future-Building	89
Self-Authoring	91
The Way of the “Bricoleur”	102
Empathic Attunement	103
Group Counselling and Other Social Supports	104
Chapter 4: A SocioDynamic Counselling Practice Scenario	111
First Counselling Session	112
Second Counselling Session	117
Third Counselling Session	122
Follow-Up and Comment	124
Endnotes	131