

Madelyn Blair, PhD

Author | Speaker | Management Consultant

Are you drowning in data?

Overwhelmed and bombarded by new information at work or in your business? Are you held hostage by your inbox? Struggling to keep your head above water let alone find time to stay current on the latest in your field?

Do you have no time to read? Too many emails?

No budget for training or conferences?

Too much information constantly coming at you?

What if you had a framework of learning tailored to the way you learn best so that you could not just keep up but stay current at work and operate with confidence knowing you're more than ready for challenging situations? How good would your life feel if you could perform from a strong, confident place filled with options, possibilities for growth, and increased capacity?

Who should hear Madelyn speak? Professional women who love to learn and grow
Business Owners • Consultants • Leadership Teams • Nonprofit Organizations

Riding the Current: How to Deal with the Daily Deluge of Data

Turn your anxiety and frustration about the information raging around you into a calm journey of riding the current, syphoning just what you need from the flow. Don't try to fight it—ride the current.

Dedicated to building a new relationship between leaders and staff so that learning is a natural outcome of the work.

Madelyn Blair

Madelyn Blair, PhD is a speaker, author, and senior management consultant who specializes in organizational learning, narrative intelligence, storytelling and adult learning and knowledge management. Creator of the Riding the Current™ learning program, Madelyn's clients include Bank of Canada, NASA, Brookings Institute, the USDA, PricewaterhouseCoopers, and the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Dr. Blair has distilled her extensive experience with large organizations into nimble, innovative strategies to help working professionals and small business owners meet their goals.

Dr. Blair received her doctorate in organizational psychology from the University of Tilburg, The Netherlands, and holds an MBA from The Wharton School. She is the author of Riding the Current: How to Deal with the Daily Deluge of Data, and Essays in Two Voices. She is a contributing author of Lessons from the Field, Wake Me Up When the Data Is Over, and Making it Real: Sustaining Knowledge Management—Adapting for Success in the Knowledge Based Economy.

learn more at madelynblair.com

To inquire about booking Madelyn for your event, contact Gretchen Breuner at 619 985-2442 or gbreuner@gmail.com