

Table of contents

| | |
|---|----------------|
| Chapter 1: Making self with others: in this relational journey of learning | 01-14 |
| History of my relations in construction as self-help change worker | 01-09 |
| Emergence of interaction process of reconstruction | 09-14 |
| Chapter 2: Relational Constructionism: It's potential to promote self-help | 15-30 |
| Two discourses of self-help | 15-26 |
| Constructing non subject-object processes | 27-30 |
| Chapter 3: Learning and doing together with the community | 31-54 |
| Abandoning my early design | 31-38 |
| An evolving process of dialogue and participation | 39-53 |
| The emergence of some learning issues | 53-54 |
| Chapter 4: Problem Solving (PS) in barangay Balinad | 55-78 |
| A brief overview of the problem solving cycle in all the five purok | 55-60 |
| Stories of problem solving | 60-78 |
| Chapter 5: Appreciative Inquiry(AI) in barangay Napo | 79-103 |
| A brief overview of the appreciative inquiry cycle in all six purok | 79-84 |
| Stories of appreciative inquiry | 84-103 |
| Chapter 6: Reflecting concepts with learning from the ground | 104-124 |
| Prologue | 104 |
| Appreciative Inquiry and Problem Solving compared | 104-109 |
| AI-PS co-construction with local culture and history of relations | 109-111 |
| Facilitating AI with non subject-object ways of relating: An invitation to change workers | 111-118 |
| Bibliographic references | 120-125 |
| Appendices | 126-141 |
| 1. Map showing barangay Balinad and Napo and their general background | 126-129 |
| 2. Some community action-stories of success shared at destiny stage of AI in Napo | 129-134 |
| 3. Month wise participation of stakeholders in self-help activities | 134 |
| 4. Collated summary from mid-year review and year-end evaluation | 134-137 |
| 5. Stories shared at the discovery stage of AI cycle in Napo and community expression about story listening | 137-138 |
| 6. Community identified principles and strengths drawn from discovery story listening in Napo | 139 |
| 7. On self learning , changes and their future roles: Utterances of local volunteers engaged in AI | 140 |
| 8. Profile of self-help volunteers | 141 |