

The program offers a special value as a collaborative learning community in action: a learning environment and process that is harmonious with the theoretical and philosophical assumptions on which collaborative practice is based. Collaborative learning invites and insures that the knowledge and experience of the participants is valued, accessed and enhanced and the faculty is fully supportive and accessible.

There is consistency in program content across institutions, keeping the philosophy of collaboration, each institution has uniquely designed its program to meet the needs of local participants. Program components include courses (on-site and on-line), practice opportunities, supervision and consultation, international faculty exchange, and numerous opportunities to interact with students in programs and projects around the world. Each program includes enriching opportunities for learners to combine studies in their local program with study at other participating Institutions around the world.

International Certificate in Collaborative Practices

An international learning community and network

The International Certificate Program is a response to the numerous practitioners around the world who are interested in expanding their knowledge and competency in collaborative practice. The Certificate Program provides practitioners across disciplines- therapy, organization development, education and research- an intensive, in-depth study of collaborative practices based in postmodern-social construction philosophy. The Program includes the study of the theoretical and philosophical assumptions and their application to practice in a variety of contexts and cultures.

It is designed for working professionals and is offered in various countries and in concentrated time periods.
